Alexander is an experienced labor and employment attorney who has worked with clients in a wide array of industries including hospitality, healthcare, construction, financial services, emerging technologies and higher education.

He represents national and international clients, as well as small businesses, in all aspects of labor and employment law. His experience extends to discrimination and sexual harassment litigation, as well as the defense of clients against collective and class actions involving wage-and-hour disputes, including claims of unpaid minimum and overtime wages, tip misappropriation and other violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act and state law.

Alexander advises and defends businesses on litigation in the area of accessibility of public accommodations under Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act and the New York State and New York City Human Rights Laws. He regularly counsels clients on the accessibility of their facilities, websites, mobile applications, auxiliary aids and services.

Alexander also works closely with clients to conduct due diligence on labor and employment issues in corporate acquisitions and advises clients on compliance with local, state and federal laws regarding hiring and termination, discipline, discrimination, retaliation, reasonable accommodations, COVID-19 related issues, and wages. He has significant experience drafting labor and employment handbooks and policies and procedures, as well as drafting and negotiating employment, separation, confidentiality and non-competition agreements on behalf of both employers and executives.
