A transactional attorney with a comprehensive knowledge of the entertainment industry, Daniel is skilled with navigating traditional and emerging media, including narrative and unscripted films, episodic series, podcasts, literary publishing, advertising and other digital media content.

In the film and television sectors, Daniel counsels clients in all stages of project development, rights acquisition, financing, production and distribution.

Daniel represents production companies, producers, financiers, on-camera talent, directors, writers, and other content creators, as well as businesses in the digital, gaming and new media industries. With experience on both the business and creative sides of the entertainment industry, Daniel provides clients a collaborative approach while obtaining favorable terms at the bargaining table. He is passionate about connecting key players with creatives to help bring projects to life.
