Jessica is an experienced commercial litigator who represents businesses in complex disputes in federal and state courts and in arbitration. She focuses her practice on high-stakes commercial disputes, strategic risk mitigation and litigation involving emerging technologies.

Her practice centers on sophisticated commercial matters, including product liability actions, shareholder disputes, real estate litigation, intellectual property claims and breach-of-contract cases. She brings a practical, business-focused approach to these matters, informed by her prior experience in the technology sector, where she developed software and complex web-based systems. This technical background allows her to quickly master complex subject matter and translate technical concepts into clear, persuasive advocacy for courts, arbitrators and clients.
