Kathryn advises startups and emerging companies throughout their corporate lifecycles – from company formation and capital raising to their eventual exit. She regularly works with founders, management teams and boards in the role of outside general counsel, advising on strategic matters and negotiations.

Kathryn has extensive experience representing medical technology companies with entity selection and initial formation, capital raising, technology licensing, clinical trial agreement negotiation, HIPAA compliance, data privacy and M&A transactions. In addition to her work with startup companies, Kathryn represents venture capital funds with respect to their portfolio investments.
