Zach provides a full suite of transactional, corporate, and intellectual property legal services to clients in the music industry.

He guides clients through complex music transactions, including acquisitions, sales and securitizations of catalogs of musical compositions and recordings ranging in value from six figures to nine figures. He has substantial experience in copyright law, with a particular emphasis on statutory termination analysis under the U.S. Copyright Act and its application to catalog transactions.

Zach also provides broad corporate legal advice to companies operating in all facets of the music industry, with a focus on drafting and negotiating thoughtful operating agreements and other governance documents.

Additionally, Zach provides strategic advice to songwriters and recording artists on agreements and licenses related to music publishing and recording.
